

I don't believe that Echostar should be allowed to purchase the satellite in question from Voom.

That decision could incredibly hinder the progress of a third provider, Voom LLC, if it is indeed able to secure funding and go forward.